MONDAY EVENING, MAY 21, 1866.

THE NATIONAL BANKS have not been long in existence and have greater advantages than maks ever had before, both to preserve their credit and make money; yet we see by the late 'ailures that they may be as rotten as the worst wildcat banks. The people have been disposed to regard them as safe as the Sub-Treasury itgelf because they are called national banks, and neve no doubt trusted them with deposits to a ray great extent on that account. It is seen by this last failure that an agent of the government placed a very large sum in the hands of one of them and lost it. Others may do the some. The bonds deposited as security for their circulation are no security for deposits .-It is the duty of the government to protect the people in this respect, especially as the banks he legislation of Congress. It there be any icy in existence by which these institutions can be overhauled, they ought to be thoroughly ventilated at once. If there be not such a law Jongress ought to pass one immediately. Let ail their transactions be exhibited to the public at short and regular intervals, and let the goverement have an inspecting and supervisory power over them. While they exist under the authority of the general government it is the imperative duty of the government to see that the people be not swindled by them, for they have been brought into existence by and in the name of the government, and the people trust hem on that account. It may require a little time to remodel our banking system, but the process ought to be commenced at once. -N. Y. Herald.
